

EDISON SAYS: PEOPLE WHO WORK MUST PLAY

"Before old age overtakes me I hope to invent a new kind of pleasure for the people of the world."
—Edison.

"1913's Labor Day problem is Problem of more play, not of more work!"—Edison.

Two new views of Edison at work in his laboratory and the latest portrait of him. Below is his signature, given to Miss O'Reilly especially for the readers of The Day Book.

(Remarkable interview, exclusive for The Day Book, with world's greatest inventor, who says the problem of the age is play for the masses; cheap, efficient, leisureful play. "Think first for the poor, only afterwards for the rich!" he exclaims.)

By Mary Boyle O'Reilly.
(Copyright, 1913, by the Newspaper Enterprise Association.)
Orange, N. J., Aug. 30.—I have just